THE HEALTHY BRAND

Everyday Baby offers smart and healthy products for families with babies and young children. We, Andreas, Edon and Fredrik, are the founders of Everyday Baby and today also parents, but the seed to Everyday Baby started to grow even before we had children of our own.

Living an active and healthy lifestyle has always been a basic ground for all three of us. Andreas is a dedicated cyclist with trophies on the shelf, Edon is a multiple time champion in Karate and Fredrik a professional soccer player.

In 2012 we were thinking of starting families of our own and curious as we were, we read a lot about being a parent. In one of the many baby magazines there was a question from a parent who wondered how hot the milk should be inside the baby bottle.

A doctor had answered that it should be around 37°C/98°F and referred to the normal body temperature. So, how do we know that the temperature of the milk is safe for the baby to drink?

After a lot of searching we found that there were NO solutions that could check the temperature in a safe and effective way, so we created what is today known as the Heat Sensing Glass Baby Bottle which saves the babies from getting burned by changing colour and also makes them stay healthy as it is made of glass.

As some parents say, it is probably the best baby bottle in the world.

Everyday Baby has since then been awarded as the best Company in 2016, seen on national TV channels in different countries around the world and is now a well-established brand known for design, innovation and healthy products.

Now, a few years later, we are all dads who still live active lives with our families and Everyday Baby. We have been focusing on helping families with babies and young children to stay healthy and safe by creating and designing more innovative and healthy products.
